I'm new to CoffeeScript but I'm finding it a joy. One thing I keep reading about is the need for a "live" function in jQuery. Here's the example: $("#navbar.box").live("mouseover", function() {... }); What's the equivalent for CoffeeScript? My best bet so far is an alias to avoid repeating "document": page = document $(page.selectors).live(page.events) But this still feels like the most clumsy way to do it. A: CoffeeScript ~> jquery.coffee: $(document).on "mouseover", '#navbar.box', -> #blah or, if you want to be more explicit, use the EventEmitter object to avoid passing function references around: $(document).on "mouseover", '#navbar.box', -> @emit('mouseover', '#navbar.box') Q: Загрузка файла в локальный сервер из голосовых записей
