My code doesn't work properly. Here is the code: File.CreateDirectory(Path.Combine("Documents", "map" + product_code + product_version)); File.CreateDirectory(Path.Combine("Documents", "map" + product_code + product_version)); File.Create(Path.Combine("Documents", "map" + product_code + product_version, "road_map_" + product_code + product_version + ".txt")); The first line works, the 2nd doesn't work. A: Make sure your file name includes an extension (e.g. road_map_v1.txt) The reason you're getting that error is that you have two different filenames: road_map_v1.txt road_map_v1 A: You need to create a full path to the file: File.Create(Path.Combine("Documents", "map" + product_code + product_version, "road_map_" + product_code + product_version + ".txt")); You also need to create the file when you create the directory: File.CreateDirectory(Path.Combine("Documents", "map" + product_code + product_version)); Interior use of silver nanoparticles to disrupt sulfide oxidation in anaerobic water treatment. The effects of different concentrations of silver nanoparticles (AgNPs) on sulfide removal from secondary effluent were investigated in batch reactors at pH 8.0. AgNPs were readily consumed with a half-life of 22.4 d. At pH 8.0 and 70 °C, the specific removal rate of sulfide increased from -0.94 to -1.15 mg gVSS-1 d-1 as the amount of AgNPs increased from 0.0 to 40.0 mg
