What You Need to Know For most of the work you'll do in the corporate identity field, you'll be working with images. As an editor, you need to know about the basics of a graphic's shape and proportions so that you can enhance or clean up images without introducing unintentional distortions. You can also use image editing to prepare a logo for production or to prepare a simple graphic illustration. Corporate identity designs are divided into two categories: _multilayered_ and _flat_. Most designs use a combination of both, sometimes with _multilayered_ designs using illustrations in a hand-drawn style and _flat_ designs using more realistic illustrations. The application for creating corporate identity designs varies based on the type of project. For example, Photoshop's features enable you to create multilayered designs or graphic illustrations of various sizes. In Illustrator, you can create simple outlines and generate vector images for illustrations, logos, or other graphics.

The global LNG market will rise to an estimated US$40.3 billion in 2017, according to an IHS analysis by PwC (formerly Price Waterhouse Coopers, PwC). This represents a rise of 6.4% in dollar terms, outpacing the average annual growth of 4.8%, which was reported by the trade association LNG Information Service (LIS). LIS attributed this growth to changing domestic and international market conditions, higher demand in the emerging market, and rising FDI flows. A key driver behind the growth in demand is heightened awareness of the environmental benefits of gas, as well as an improvement in the security of supplies over shorter distances, in contrast to oil. Indeed, the rapid growth of the global LNG market is partly due to the expansion of markets in Asia and Latin America, which is primarily driven by a sharp increase in FDI flows, according to PwC. This is an important aspect of the market, and can be seen in the development of the South-East Asia/Pacific region, where LNG imports are up 108% to US$2.4 billion in 2015. But there is also significant growth in the overall regional economy, as the major markets in Asia, namely Japan, China, and India, continue to expand, and this growth is coupled with rising demand from the industry.
